

To whomsoever it may concern

Hiral Nagda worked as a programmer with the Godrej India Culture Lab between January and March 2017.

Hiral's primary project was the digital execution of 'Mumbai's Culture Map' which is an online mapping exercise of the cultural institutions in Mumbai. Hiral was brought on as a technological partner for the project which is hosted on our official website.

Hiral showed versatility and quick-thinking, offering technological solutions to problems we faced while designing the map. She regularly gave informed inputs and her delivery of the work was on time. She delivered the project with excellence.

Hiral showcased professional conduct during the time she worked on the project for the Lab. She is an innovative programmer and I wish her the very best for all her future endeavours.
